A Message from Father Tim

Summertime Thoughts from Father Tim

Every year around this time, Minnesotans seem to be at their highest peak of overall joy because we have a greater potential of wonderful, warm summer weather – though not a guarantee – and we simply love how alive nature seems to be abounding around us. It is lovely to see how God created a natural environment of plants and animals and bodies of water, and this environment created by the Almighty has a beautiful, cyclical manner of renewing itself. A well-known Western Christian hymn comes to my mind: "Our God is an Awesome God!"

In typical fashion, we try to spend as much time as we can outdoors! In similar typical fashion we also allow many of our routines to change just for the summertime. We dress casually more frequently, we eat at restaurants more frequently, we clean our homes less attentively, we strive to get away from work more, and we justify more absences from worship services at our churches. Basically, we give ourselves permission to be lazy. Believe it or not there are some benefits to intentionally allowing moments or periods of time when we just "chill" but it's important to make sure that such periods of time do not allow for unwanted disfunction to settle in. After all, God Himself took time to rest. It's worth remembering that in the Book of Genesis we learn from the creation story that God intentionally ordained one day in a sequence of seven days to be a day of rest. Certainly, the Omnipotent God did not need to rest, yet for the sanctification of His people and the strengthening of His relationship with us, He provided for us a system and a mindfulness of rest. But take note, dear friends, that even His day of rest was placed in an orderly fashion.

I try to practice this type of season of rest in my own life and I urge you to do the same. So, it's a good idea to intentionally work less and to play more. But let's remember to still clean our homes and continue to fulfill commitments at work and in the community, and to remember to maintain the time of building up our relationship with the Lord God through our communal Church worship. Thankfully, the ecclesiastical cycle of worship and prayer with God and His community offers us a time for engaging more fully with Him even as we try to engage more playful activity and rest.

Orthodox Christians celebrate two great feasts in August. On August 6 we celebrate the feast of the Transfiguration at which we, literally, bless grapes and other fruits which are the work of our hands and the blessing of summer heat and warmth. We also celebrate the great feast of the Dormition of the Theotokos on August 15th every year. This is the last in the series of twelve great feasts of the ecclesiastical year which runs from September through August, and we rejoice in it with great love for her who gave birth to our Savior Jesus Christ. In fact, we offer great attention to the Virgin Mary and this feast commemorating her departure from this world. In her wisdom, the Church engages us in a fasting period of 14 days in preparation for the feast and we pray with beautiful hymnology and poetry a Supplicatory prayer service by which we seek her intercessions in our lives. She, as the one who bore and gave birth to the One who is truly God and Man, stands as chief leader of prayer and protection for us before her Son and our Lord Jesus. It is a short service, at which we commemorate names of living loved ones, particularly through struggles of health or other life challenges. I urge you to look at our church schedule of services and set time aside for the Paraclesis as well as all other feasts and Sundays.

Stewardship

The Three Pillars of Stewardship

Ownership, Engagement, and Generosity

...continued...

"But this I say: He who sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and he who sows bountifully will also reap bountifully. So let each one give as he purposes in his heart, not grudgingly or of necessity; for God loves a cheerful giver. And God is able to make all grace abound toward you, that you, always having all sufficiency in all things, may have an abundance for every good work. As it is written: 'He has dispersed abroad, He has given to the poor; His righteousness endures forever.'"

—2 Corinthians 9:6-9

As we have mentioned the past two months, the Metropolis of Chicago has begun a Metropolis-wide stewardship initiative entitled "Strengthen Stewardship Now and Forever," based on the principles of Ownership, Engagement, and Generosity.

We have discussed Ownership and Engagement in previous months. But what does it mean to be generous? The upcoming fifteen day fast and celebration of the Dormition reminds us of the extraordinary generosity of a young holy woman who, when approached by the Archangel, willingly accepted the role as the bearer and nurturer of Christ the Savior. As we contemplate ways in which we too can exhibit generosity at St. Mary's, in time, talent and treasure, may we look to the Theotokos as our shining example and remember that when we give of ourselves, usually we find that more comes back to us in wonderful and unexpected ways.

If you have not yet made a formal pledge of your time, talent, and treasure to St. Mary's, please fill out a form and return it to the office. If you have already done so, we are so grateful for your generosity and your personal and formal commitment to Christ and His Church.

Blessed feast of the Dormition!

In Christ,
The Stewardship Committee

Saint Mary's 2022 Stewardship Campaign Update

Our Church, Our Spiritual Home

Thank you for your participation in our 2022 Stewardship Campaign and your on-going support of St. Mary's through your gifts of time, talent, and treasure.

A Reminder: The goal this year is to cover all the Church ministries and operating costs through Stewardship contributions without relying on rental and festival income to cover the gap. The experience of the pandemic impact during the past two years reminds us how important it is not to rely on the rental and festival income to cover the costs of our ministries and operations of the church.

As of July 4, 2022, we have covered 37% of this year's budget for ministries and operating expenses.

Offering Income received to date is behind by $42,564 compared to where we were last year at this time. We encourage parishioners to make regular contributions throughout the year to ensure we are covering our expenses each month. Prayerfully consider also increasing your Stewardship contribution this year to help us reach our goal. Your stewardship giving to St. Mary's is one way to exhibit the principle of generosity.

Job Opportunity: Family Seeking Nanny

An Edina family is looking for a part-time nanny for their three children (10 year old boy, 8 year old girl, and 6 year old girl). All three children are in school, so the family is looking for someone to pick the kids up from school and help them with homework and getting them to their after-school activities. This position will be part time with 4 days per week with the hours typically being 6:30-8:00 a.m. and 2:20-6ish p.m. If the nanny is interested in additional hours, the family would love for someone to take on a bit of a household manager role while the kids are at school and complete tasks such as laundry and running errands, but this is optional. Rarely when a kid is sick, they would need her to stay home with them. During the summer, they would need someone more full time. They would love someone who is looking for a long-term position! Because this position requires driving, the nanny will need to have a reliable car and you will be reimbursed for mileage. Pay based upon experience. Contact David in the Church Office for information.

In the Bookstore

by Rebecca Myerly

Saint Nektarios (1846-1920) put great value in education—both sacred and secular. For Mind and Heart: St. Nektarios as Teacher is a collection of texts chosen and translated by Rev. Dr. John Palmer. In his Preface, Palmer writes:

Of the texts included in the present collection, half are sermons or orations, while the remaining texts...are penned in such a way as to both instruct and spiritually move the reader. Consequently, this corpus affords us an opportunity to observe St. Nektarios as a pedagogue in action. (XXII)

The texts are presented in an order that builds and develops. In "On the Feast of the Three Hierarchs," St. Nektarios emphasizes that St. Basil the Great, St. Gregory the Theologian, and St. John Chrysostom each had sacred and secular educations. Their mothers Emmelia, Nonna, and Anthusa (respectively) gave their sons a strong upbringing in the faith, so much so that they were confident their sons would not lose their faith when they sent them off for secular education. With this, St. Nektarios stresses the importance of mothers in raising children. In the next text, titled "Motherhood and the Raising of Children," he writes:

Nature has appointed parents, especially mothers, to be the teachers of this age [infancy and childhood]...to suitably educate and carefully form children: it is they who serve as images and patterns, of which their children become copies in continuation. A child imitates either the virtues or the shortcoming of his mother, her voice and manner, her ethos and behavior....It is the mother who most properly plants the first idea of God in the child's heart. (16,17)

In "The Calling of Youth in Society" and "On Exercise," St. Nektarios turns his attention to young men and the vital importance of a well rounded upbringing for them with both a sacred and secular education working together with physical exercise to build strength of character. Explaining the importance of wisdom, piety, justice, truth, and knowledge, he stresses, "It is...an obligation above every other that we should know ourselves in order to become virtuous, while, conversely, our ignorance of this results in a myriad of sins." (38)

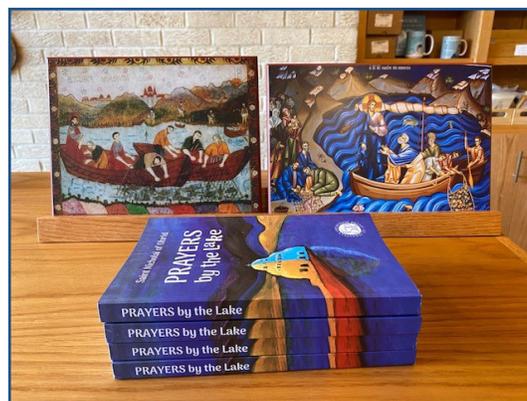

St. Nektarios quotes Greek philosophers in many of his texts in this book and elsewhere. In "Concerning Greek Philosophy As a Guide Leading to Christianity," he, steeped in the writing of St. Clement of Alexandria on philosophy, explains, "Greek Philosophy taught about God's providential care for humanity and became humanity's pedagogue, leading it to Christ through its sound ideas." (54) St. Nektarios also carefully points out its deficiency and insufficiency "when it comes to the great work of mankind's illumination and reformation." (68)

Man sought divine revelation so as that he might learn the truth, be certain, be convinced; it stood in need of a divine reformer. Philosophy was wanting in both these regards. Man found these in Christianity, however, which Greek Philosophy led it to. This is my humble opinion concerning these matters. (68)

The concluding text in this book is "The Necessary Attributes of a Spiritual Shepherd," which is a section of St. Nektarios' Pastoral Handbook. Written in a question and answer format, he highlights the importance of spiritual shepherds (priests and bishops) having a broad and extensive education and formation.

For Mind and Heart: St. Nektarios As Teacher offers guidance and encouragement to parents and all who teach, whether formally or informally. Keeping in mind we all teach, whether intentionally or not, by our words and our actions—and our very being, this book roots the reader in awareness of this calling and responsibility. David Brooks wrote in his book The Second Mountain, "The educated life is a journey toward higher and high love." (201) This aptly applies to St. Nektarios and all who read him with sincere openness and the desire to learn.

The Dormition of the Theotokos August 15

Prophet David, tell us please, what do we celebrate today?
"The Assumption of the one, whom in the Psalms I extolled as daughter and Virgin and the Mother of God, when Christ, who without seed was born of her, himself transported her to heaven, to the mansions there. And on this day especially mothers, daughters, and brides of Christ salute her with joy, 'Rejoice, O Lady! You were transported to the royal courts on high!'"
