Membership Drive Is Underway

Now Through March 31

In January, all women of the parish received a letter inviting them to engage with Philoptochos as new or returning members. For 92 years, Philoptochos has served as the philanthropic arm of the church. At St. Mary's, our chapter actively supports local, national, international, and Orthodox charities, while coordinating numerous hands-on activities throughout the year. We also contribute to the parish by decorating for seasonal events, hosting Pan-Orthodox and community gatherings, and organizing the Festival bake sale. Visit our table during coffee hour on Sundays to learn more about Philoptochos, submit your membership form, or sign up to volunteer for upcoming activities. Membership dues are self-determined, with the first $22 supporting our Metropolis and National Philoptochos, and the remainder directly benefiting our local chapter.

Sweet Sunday

Sunday, February 8

Sweet Sunday is a cherished Philoptochos fundraiser where we host coffee hour after Liturgy and invite donations to support a charitable organization. Members are encouraged to volunteer and contribute baked goods or treats to fill our Sweet Sunday tables. Please sign up in advance for the treat you'd like to bring, and please wear red for the occasion! Stay tuned for upcoming church communications to learn more about this year's beneficiary. Thank you in advance for your kindness and support!

In the Bookstore

By Rebecca Myerly
bookstore@stmarysgoc.org

Bishop Irenei Steenberg of London and Western Europe, formerly Matthew Steenberg (St. Olaf Class of '01), has written The Pursuit of Godliness: Five Centuries on Spiritual Ascent. He explains why he wrote this book:

It has seemed to me useful to consolidate together some of the most essential teachings of the Holy Fathers on the attaining of a Godly life, since we find ourselves sojourning in a world increasing bereft of, or rather, antithetical to, the pursuit of Godliness. (1)

To do this, Bishop Irenei writes:

I have found it...useful to adopt the format of “centuries,” or collections of one-hundred short expositions, in order to make more readily accessible the thoughts of our Fathers and the traditions of our Church that are spread across hundreds of volumes spanning two millennia.* (3)

He does this very effectively in five chapters: “A Century on the Kingdom of God and Its Attainment,” “A Century on Love,” “A Century on the Acquisition of Knowledge,” “A Century on the Church,” and “A Century on Worship and Prayer, and the Ascent of Humanity to God.” Within each chapter he elaborates on topics pertinent to the overarching theme of each century.

While this book would be fruitful reading in any season, it is especially appropriate as a guide for reflection and meditation during Lent. Two examples illustrating this are from “A Century on the Kingdom of God and Its Attainment”:

The Christian’s mission to the world consists fundamentally in the transformation of his own heart. In that space are worked wonders that touch every corner of the cosmos. (26)

It is therefore in the power of every Christian to change the whole of creation and to touch the life of every other human being. None are isolated; none are far from the possibility of pastoral care and the exercise of redemptive compassion. Repent, attain the Spirit of Peace, and, as St Seraphim once said, “thousands around you will be saved”—and even beyond these, countless more whose lives are changed when the human race is healed in your heart. (26)

The Pursuit of Godliness shines light on the way of the Church Fathers and the saints throughout the ages:

Our approach to knowledge in the saints is...distinct from the purely worldly approach to the same: we do not merely analyze what they have said before, recorded in the annals of history, but we listen as they speak to us ever and always in the Church; and our ears are prepared for the hearing of their voices by the comportment of our lives. (73)

It is when the saints speak to the heart that we come to know the Holy Fathers; and it is by readying the heart for that encounter through repentance and a full life in the Church that we render ourselves open to such spiritual illumination. (73)

Bishop Irenei concludes:

Godliness is obtainable: it is the free gift of the Lord. Pursuing it should be our aim, our happiness, our struggle, and our salvation....Amen! (143)

Stewardship

Our stewardship theme for 2026, “Ownership, Engagement and Generosity,” emphasizes offering our “First Fruits” (Proverbs 3:9). We thank the many parishioners who have already submitted their Time and Talent pledge forms for 2026. Thank you for committing to Christ and His Church!

Below is a beautiful testimony from one of our parishioners, Kyrsten Theodotou, who shared her message of Stewardship following the Liturgy on November 18, 2025

On Monday night as we were getting ready for bed, my five year old son was passing out his coins to his siblings. During that time he came up to me and said, “Mom, when I get older I’m going to get rich and then give all my money to the poor.” A little later we were reading the daily readings after family prayers and the scripture was from Luke Chapter 12: “beware of all covetousness; for a man’s life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions...further do not be anxious about your life...consider the ravens yet God feeds them and of how much more value are we than the birds.” The Gospel ended with, “your father knows that you need them, seek his kingdom and these things shall be yours as well”... During the reading, I paused and said to him, “Andrew, this is exactly what you were talking about, giving your money to the poor.” He adamantly corrected me and reminded me by saying, “No mom, first I’m going to get rich, then I’ll give all of my money to the poor.” Of course, I laughed to myself, as kids do say the funniest things with the most innocent heart. And then it prompted me to think further about what does it really mean to give and to be a good steward. His comment reminded me, how far too often in my life, had I thought, “once we have , then we can do .” Andrew’s comment was a good reminder that we don’t need “wait” for something to happen before we give. We have the woman from the Gospels who gave all she had, her one denari, and that was sufficient for Christ.

When I personally reflect on stewardship and what it means to give, I must be honest and say it wasn’t, nor has it always been easy, nor should it be. It shouldn’t be comfortable, and it should make us stretch ourselves a little bit more. Growing up, we learned to be stewards in the church community by attending services, preparing the liturgy books and readings. When you grow up in a small Orthodox mission parish, there aren’t other people to “do the job”; it really falls on the people who are there. Admittedly, this sometimes fueled resentment as a selfish teenager, but when I look back, those small opportunities to be a steward, even though it wasn’t with my money at the time, were opportunities that allowed me to serve God and the Orthodox community with my time and talent.

Stewardship is time, talent and treasure. I learned to give of my time and talent as a younger child. As I became an independent young adult, I really needed to learn what it meant to give of my treasure; treasure which I thought I didn’t have of course just starting out. It continues to be a topic of discussion with my spiritual father and I am so grateful for his guidance on tithing. He would frequently share with me that the purpose of tithing is to build trust in God, something I continue to work on to this day. He would say to me, “God doesn’t need our money, he needs us to trust Him.” Tithing and/or being a steward is for the benefit of our souls because it forces us to give all what we have, whether it be time, talent, or treasure and trust God to work in our lives. It forces us to look outside of our own needs and give all of our worldly cares to God.

In our office/clinic, we have a quote on the front desk that says, “Where God guides, He provides.” This continues to stick with me. Even this week, I was reminded that God provides. After a few months of being uncomfortably slow at work, in one day, we exceeded what we had done in the last 2 months. I felt humbled, grateful, and was reminded that God really does provide.

I am thankful for the opportunity to have shared a little bit with you on what stewardship has meant to me and my family through the years. And it is in the voices of the youngest children, who are closest to God, that remind us that we can give “all of it to the poor” and it is our job to teach through example that we don’t need to “wait” for something to happen before we give of our time, talent and treasure. God meets us where we are at and He wants us to trust in Him that he will work through us and provide for us because He loves us.

Our Children and Youth Mission Statement

To cultivate a safe and welcoming environment for kids by nurturing healthy relationships within the church family. We will teach the youth by building a strong foundation of knowledge, and together, we will experience the Orthodox tradition by following the four circles of youth ministry: Liturgia (Worship), Diakonia (Service), Martyria (Witness), and Koinonia (Fellowship), leading our youth to develop, by their own free will, a personal relationship with God and to pursue union with Him.
